

What can I do with Psychology qualifications?

- Aid Worker/Humanitarian Worker
- Civil Service Administrator
- Government Research Officer
- Journalist
- Management Accountant
- Political Party Research Officer
- Public affairs consultant (lobbyist)
- Public Relations (PR) Officer
- Social Researcher
- Solicitor

Further education courses:

- Many of our students go on to study degrees in the Politics or Politics and International Relations, or related subjects, such as History, English, Economics, Law, Philosophy and Social Anthropology.

- Students are able to embark on a wide range of courses at university, training and careers.

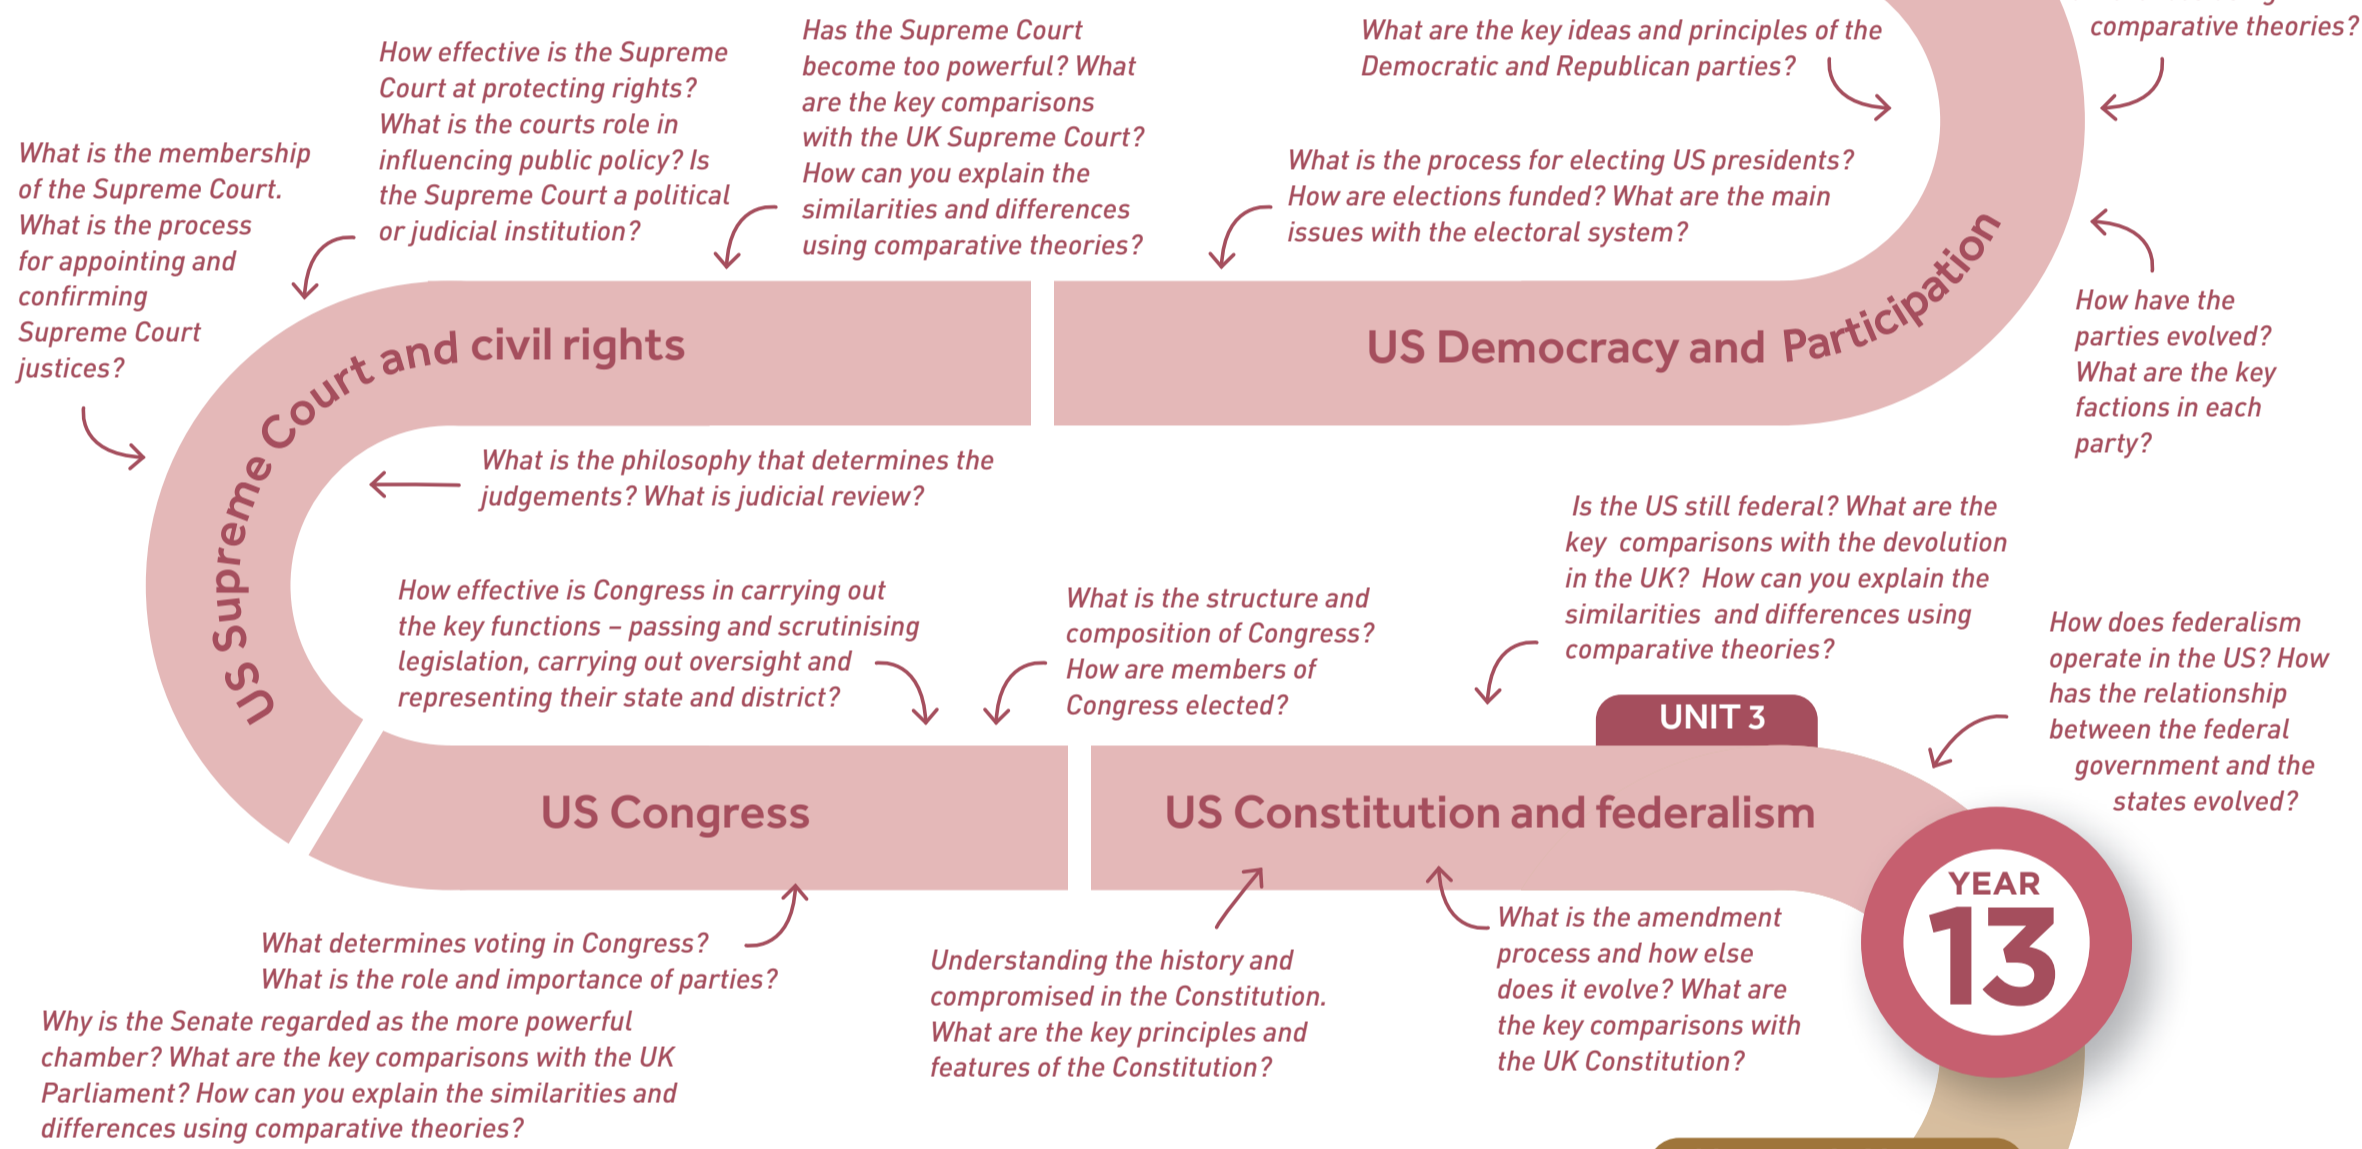

- Politics students develop key transferable skills including research, communication, critical analysis and evaluation; these are valued in many careers and professions, including journalism, law, finance, diplomacy, as well as directly in the world of politics.

Mastery in Year 13

- Knowledge and understanding of key terms for each topic.
- Range of current evidence to support points.
- Understanding of analysis points including explanations, comparisons and synoptic links.
- Practice and mastery of essay structure.
- Clear comparisons between the UK and US.
- Practice and mastery of comparative question structure and comparative theories.

How do factors such as race, religion, gender and education help explain voting behaviour? What is the significance of interest groups in the US political system and how do they impact democracy?

What are the key comparisons with the UK elections, parties and pressure groups? How can you explain the similarities and differences using comparative theories?

Mastery in Year 12

- Knowledge and understanding of key terms for each topic.
- Range of current evidence to support points.
- Effective cases studies.
- Understanding of analysis points including explanations, comparisons and synoptic links.
- Practice and mastery of essay structure including source-based and ideologies essays.
- Knowledge and ability to apply key thinkers for each ideology.

